Crowdbeamer at InfoComm:
The first presentation system that works wherever people meet

Edegem (Belgium) - June 5, 2018 - Crowdbeamer is the first presentation system that streams any screen content wirelessly to all portable devices, whatever the meeting environment. Every audience member with a laptop, tablet or smartphone can capture what they see, add personal notes and share that content with others. Scaling to any audience size, this game-changing presentation system offers unparalleled opportunities to make meetings and presentations more productive.

Crowdbeamer exhibits at InfoComm, Las Vegas. Visit us at booth C4020 to see crowdbeamer, and discover its countless applications for corporate, government, education, church, as well as staging and rental.

Crowdbeamer puts the audience first
Crowdbeamer's built-in WiFi streams any HDMI or VGA video signal in real time to all connected smartphones, tablets, and laptops, providing everybody in the audience the best view in the house.

Using the free crowdbeamer app (available for all major operating systems), audience members can capture what they see, add personal notes and export to other business apps. That strong audience engagement helps presenters create long-term impact with their message.

Crowdbeamer works wherever people meet
Crowdbeamer is incredibly flexible, working either wall powered or operating on built-in batteries. Thanks to its built-in WiFi, crowdbeamer puts the presenter's message in the hands of the audience without the need for an internet connection. Using a network of crowdbeamers, presenters can now even reach out to an audience of any size.
